Content VoiceWorks® is an award-winning series of plays for grades 3-5 which provide students with an authentic and intentional purpose for rereading high-interest text. Each level has traditional, contemporary, and language play scripts that expose students to various genres. They work well for reading aloud, script reading, Reader's Theater, or complete class performances. Expressive reading is emphasized with a theater approach. Silent reading and tracking skills are fostered along with an improvement in confidence with oral reading.

Student Experiences VoiceWorks® provides readers with a fun and exciting way to practice their fluency and expression. Stories will come alive as students read through the different experiences of each of the characters. Opportunities to discuss contemporary issues such as bullying and friendships are built into each level, along with rich language experiences with word play, alliteration, rhyme, and sound effects. Original scripts and adaptations allow students to compare the difference in text types and explore folktales and radio plays. Stories cover all emotions and help build classroom community through the shared experience.

Assessment Informal assessments for the teacher are built into each title's Teacher's Notes.

Organization Each of the VoiceWorks® titles has detailed Teacher's Notes for each title to develop both fluency and listening skills, with additional tips for exploring character, story development, setting, and plot. The books are on-grade level texts with slight variations in difficulty among them. As such, there are also teacher ideas for differentiation and inclusion for performances. At each grade level 3-5, four titles for each of the three genres are provided—12 titles in all.

Content VoiceWorks® is an award-winning series of plays for grades 3-5 which provide students with an authentic and intentional purpose for rereading high-interest text. Each level has traditional, contemporary, and language play scripts that expose students to various genres. They work well for reading aloud, script reading, Reader's Theater, or complete class performances. Expressive reading is emphasized with a theater approach. Silent reading and tracking skills are fostered along with an improvement in confidence with oral reading.

Student Experiences VoiceWorks® provides readers with a fun and exciting way to practice their fluency and expression. Stories will come alive as students read through the different experiences of each of the characters. Opportunities to discuss contemporary issues such as bullying and friendships are built into each level, along with rich language experiences with word play, alliteration, rhyme, and sound effects. Original scripts and adaptations allow students to compare the difference in text types and explore folktales and radio plays. Stories cover all emotions and help build classroom community through the shared experience.

Assessment Informal assessments for the teacher are built into each title's Teacher's Notes.

Organization Each of the VoiceWorks® titles has detailed Teacher's Notes for each title to develop both fluency and listening skills, with additional tips for exploring character, story development, setting, and plot. The books are on-grade level texts with slight variations in difficulty among them. As such, there are also teacher ideas for differentiation and inclusion for performances. Stories will come alive as students read through the different experiences of each of the characters. Opportunities to discuss contemporary issues such as bullying and friendships are built into each level, along with rich language experiences with word play, alliteration, rhyme, and sound effects. Original scripts and adaptations allow students to compare the difference in text types and explore folktales and radio plays. Stories cover all emotions and help build classroom community through the shared experience.

Assessment Informal assessments for the teacher are built into each title's Teacher's Notes.

Organization Each of the VoiceWorks[®] titles has detailed Teacher's Notes for each title to develop both fluency and listening skills, with additional tips for exploring character, story development, setting, and plot. The books are on-grade level texts with slight variations in difficulty among them. As such, there are also teacher ideas for differentiation and inclusion for performances. At each grade level 3-5, four titles for each of the three genres are provided-12 titles in all.

Content VoiceWorks® is an award-winning series of plays for grades 3-5 which provide students with an authentic and intentional purpose for rereading high-interest text. Each level has traditional, contemporary, and language play scripts that expose students to various genres. They work well for reading aloud, script reading, Reader's Theater, or complete class performances. Expressive reading is emphasized with a theater approach. Silent reading and tracking skills are fostered along with an improvement in confidence with oral reading.

Student Experiences VoiceWorks® provides readers with a fun and exciting way to practice their fluency and expression. Stories will come alive as students read through the different experiences of each of the characters. Opportunities to discuss contemporary issues such as bullying and friendships are built into each level, along with rich language experiences with word play, alliteration, rhyme, and sound effects. Original scripts and adaptations allow students to compare the difference in text types and explore folktales and radio plays. Stories cover all emotions and help build classroom community through the shared experience.

Assessment Informal assessments for the teacher are built into each title's Teacher's Notes.

Organization Each of the VoiceWorks® titles has detailed Teacher's Notes for each title to develop both fluency and listening skills, with additional tips for exploring character, story development, setting, and plot. The books are on-grade level texts with slight variations in difficulty among them. As such, there are also teacher ideas for differentiation and inclusion for performances. Content VoiceWorks[®] is an award-winning series of plays for grades 3-5 which provide students with an authentic and intentional purpose for rereading high-interest text. Each level has traditional, contemporary, and language play scripts that expose students to various genres.
